Art of Science exhibit in Princeton

Filed under: art - alexei @ 5:44 am

The second annual Art of Science exhibit opened recently in the Friend Center of Princeton University. The juried show features paintings, sculptures, videos and poetry, a total of 55 works produced in the course of scientific research. The top three winners were:

- 1) Jennifer Rea, "Mitosis," which depicts cell division superimposed on a floral fabric
- 2) Melissa Green, "Isolated Hairpin," a computer simulation of turbulent air flow
- 3) Qiangfei Xia, "Easter Bonnet," a photograph taken with an electron scanning microscope of a tiny piece of metal melted by a laser onto a silicon chip

Admission is free and open to the public from 9 am to 6 pm, Monday through Friday.
